Essay

107. Discuss the differences between leaders and managers.

*a. The manager is the day-to-day problem-solver, and the leader is focused on developing new approaches and options for the future. Leadership is about inspiring others to follow a vision. Managers are concerned with controlling the operations of the organization so things run efficiently. The manager imitates while the leader originates. The manager asks how and when; the leader asks what and why. The manager relies on control; the leader inspires trust.

108. Compare and contrast transformational and transactional leadership.

*a. Transactional leadership refers to behaviors that motivate followers through rewards and corrective actions. Transformational leadership refers to behaviors that mobilize extra effort from followers, and emphasizes change and articulating a new vision. Leadership is a continuum with transactional leadership as the foundation upon which transformational leadership is built. Leaders with either style must develop effective working relationships with followers.

109. Discuss the four I's of transformational leadership.

*a. The four I's are idealized influence, inspirational motivation, intellectual stimulation, and individualized consideration. Idealized influence means being admired and respected by followers, and it is the core of this leadership component. Inspirational motivation means that leaders inspire others to work hard toward organizational goals by providing challenges. Intellectual stimulation occurs when leaders encourage innovation and new ideas. Individualized consideration means treating each follower as a unique person.

110. Is LMX fair? Should leaders treat all followers alike?

*a. Leaders treat subordinates differently based upon their unique abilities and contributions to the work group and organization. Out-group members perform their job but don't go above and beyond and don't take on extra work. In-group members not only perform their job, but also go above and beyond, taking on more work and contributing more ideas. All subordinates likely should be given the opportunity to be in the in-group, but not all subordinates desire to be in the in-group.
