CHAPTER 1: MASTER TEST BANK

CREATING CUSTOMER RELATIONSHIPS AND VALUE THROUGH MARKETING

MULTIPLE CHOICE QUESTIONS

1-1 CHAPTER OPENER: 3M

COMPREHENSION

While working at 3M, David Windorski and his team observed and questioned students about how they read textbooks, take notes, and prepare for exams to

- discover a potentially new way to satisfy student needs by creating a new product.
- convince them of 3M's superiority over other competitors.
- determine how much the average college student traditionally spends on office supplies.
- find possible correlations between students' study styles and their final grades.
- develop advertising that relates more effectively with a younger student population.

Answer: a Page(s): 3 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

Rationale: As an inventor for 3M, David Windorski's principal task was to design new products. To do this, he first must discover unmet consumer needs and wants.

1-2 CHAPTER OPENER: 3M

KNOWLEDGE

How much time does 3M allow their inventors for the purpose of doing initially unfunded research?

- 5%
- 10%
- 15%
- 25%
- 35%

Answer: c Page(s): 3 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Easy

Rationale: 3M's "15% Rule" allows inventors to use up to 15 percent of their time to do initially unfunded research that might lead to marketable 3M products.

1-3 CHAPTER OPENER: 3M

COMPREHENSION

An inventor for 3M, David Windorski questioned dozens of students about how they study. They told him

- that Scotch tape had outgrown its usefulness to students.
- to make new products that have higher quality.
- that the average backpack was already too heavy.
- that it would be reasonable to put Post-it® Flags together with a highlighter.
- to determine the ratio of 3M products to study aid products of other competitors.

Answer: d Page(s): 3 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

Rationale: Windorski had to first discover students' studying needs. He did this by interviewing dozens of students. They told him that "It's natural to highlight a passage and then mark it with a Post-it® Note or Post-it® Flag.” This would require that 3M put Post-it® Flags together with a highlighter.

1-4 CHAPTER OPENER: 3M

APPLICATION

If other companies applied the same strategy David Windorski used at 3M, they would most likely

- a. avoid the use of mock-ups and working models to speed up the new-product development process and get the product out to the market faster.
- b. search continuously to discover customers’ needs.
- c. copy 3M’s “5% Rule” to do unfunded research.
- d. avoid excessive attention to customers’ demands because they cannot always differentiate between their needs and their wants.
- e. focus on the shareholders of the company and believe that strategy will follow.

Answer: b Page(s): 3 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Hard

Rationale: The first objective in marketing is discovering the needs of prospective consumers. David Windorski worked with college students and observed how they studied to discover their needs and wants. This information was essential in designing a new product.

- e. You are already a marketing expert because as a consumer, you have already been involved in marketing decisions.

Answer: e Page(s): 4 LO: 1 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

If they both purchase the same model smartphone, such as an Apple iPhone, which statement is most accurate?

- a. The adjuster is a prospective customer because the smartphone will be used for work; the student is only a secondary user since the purpose of the smartphone is just for entertainment.
- b. Both the adjuster and the student are potential customers because in their own way, they both benefit from the product.
- c. Neither the adjuster nor the student is a prospective customer since the company will pay for the adjuster's smartphone and the student's parents will pay for hers.
- d. The student is the prospective customer since there are more students buying smartphones for personal use than there are insurance adjusters buying smartphones for business use.

A prospective customer includes anyone who could benefit from owning a product—whether owning one previously or not.

1-22 PROSPECTIVE CUSTOMERS

APPLICATION

1-23 EXCHANGE

KNOWLEDGE

In marketing, the idea of exchange refers to

- a. the negotiation phase between the manufacturer and the seller.
- b. the financial remuneration (monetary payment) for a product or service.
- c. the trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each is better off after the trade.
- d. the bartering of products and services between non-governmental organizations or individuals.
- e. the practice of swapping products and services for other products and services rather than for money.

Answer: c Page(s): 5 LO: 1 AACSB: Analytic QD: Easy

Rationale: Key term definition—exchange.

1-24 EXCHANGE

KNOWLEDGE

Marketing seeks to discover the needs and wants of prospective customers and satisfy them. Essential to this process is the idea of exchange, which refers to

- a. the trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each is better off after the trade.
- b. the negotiation phase between the manufacturer and the seller.
- c. the financial remuneration (monetary payment) for a product or service.
- d. the transport of tangible goods to new owners.
- e. the practice of swapping products and services for other products and services rather than for money.

Answer: a Page(s): 5 LO: 1 AACSB: Analytic QD: Easy

Rationale: Key term definition—exchange.

1-25 EXCHANGE

KNOWLEDGE

The trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each is better off after the trade is referred to as _____.

- a. financial remuneration
- b. exchange
- c. countertrade
- d. barter
- e. marketing

Answer: b Page(s): 5 LO: 1 AACSB: Analytic QD: Easy
Rationale: Key term definition—exchange.

1-26 EXCHANGE

APPLICATION

The American Red Cross created a series of advertisements to encourage people to donate blood. After viewing an ad, Amanda went to the local Red Cross office and donated a pint of her blood. Amanda returned home feeling happy that she had performed a good deed. Was this an exchange in a marketing sense?

- a. Yes, because the blood was donated to the Red Cross based on an advertisement, a marketing activity.
- b. Yes, because the donated blood was exchanged for a feeling of satisfaction.
- c. No, because the Red Cross is nonprofit organization.
- d. No, because no money changed hands.
- e. No, because the Red Cross, a service organization, did not provide Amanda with a product.

Answer: b Page(s): 5 LO: 1 AACSB: Analytic QD: Hard

Rationale: Marketers seek to discover and satisfy the needs and wants of customers. The key to achieving these objectives is exchange—the trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each benefits from the exchange. In this instance, Amanda is a donor, another name for a customer, and the Red Cross is the marketer. An exchange occurred when Amanda exchanged her donated blood (a “thing”) for a feeling of satisfaction (another “thing”)—which to her was as valuable as money. The Red Cross received the donated blood to serve the needs of society in times of disaster—this benefits society as a whole. Alternative “a” is incorrect because the ad only served as the motivation to donate; no transaction occurred at the time Amanda saw the ad.

1-27 EXCHANGE

APPLICATION

A church put advertisements in its weekly bulletins to encourage its members to participate in the services by telling a brief, positive story about how fellow members have helped them during times of need. Jack volunteered and shared his story during a service. Afterwards, he felt joyous. Was this an exchange in a marketing sense?

- a. Yes, because the church ran an advertisement, a marketing activity.
- b. No, because the church is nonprofit organization and these actions are expected without any expectation of “exchange.”
- c. No, because no money was exchanged.
- d. Yes, because sharing his story at a service was exchanged for a feeling of joy.
- e. No, because the church did not provide Jack with a tangible product or service.

Answer: d Page(s): 5 LO: 1 AACSB: Analytic QD: Hard

Rationale: Marketers seek to discover and satisfy the needs and wants of customers. The key to achieving these objectives is exchange—the trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each benefits from the exchange. In this instance, Jack is a member or “customer” and the church is the “marketer.” An exchange occurred when Jack “exchanged” his story at the service for a feeling of joy. The rest of the church membership likely benefited from Jack’s story as well.

1-28 EXCHANGE

APPLICATION

A local college of business offers an outstanding graduate business school education program. Cali pays the tuition to attend and earns her MBA with a concentration in marketing management. Upon graduating, she is offered a high paying, fulfilling position. Was this a marketing exchange?

- No, because the university earned a profit from Cali’s tuition.
- No, because money was exchanged in the form of tuition and Cali’s income will come from her employer, not the graduate school.
- No, because the school did not provide Cali with a tangible product, only the potential of an education.
- Yes, because the university promised Cali she would graduate on time, and she did.
- Yes, because paying tuition was exchanged for knowledge that directly led to Cali’s high paying, fulfilling new job.

Answer: e Page(s): 5 LO: 1 AACSB: Analytic QD: Hard

Rationale: Marketers seek to discover and satisfy the needs and wants of customers. The key to achieving these objectives is exchange—the trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each benefits from the exchange. In this instance, Cali is the customer and the college is the marketer. An exchange occurred when Cali paid her tuition to the college and received the education required to earn a degree that resulted in the job offer.

1-226 VIDEO CASE 1: 3M

COMPREHENSION

David Windorski, an inventor at 3M, did some of his early marketing research on the Post-it® Flags Highlighter by

- a. making sure new 3M products were available at mass merchandisers such as Walmart.
- b. specifying the tolerances for injection molded parts.
- c. asking students to dump their backpacks and explain the items they carried around.
- d. investigating similar study aid products offered by other office product competitors.
- e. determining which distribution strategies would be most efficient for students.

Answer: c Page(s): 18 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

Rationale: Windorski used a variety of research techniques before launching Post-it® Flag Highlighters, including asking students to dump their backpacks and explain their carried items, conducting focus groups with six or seven students, and giving samples to students and surveying them after one month.

1-227 VIDEO CASE 1: 3M

COMPREHENSION

3M inventor, David Windorski took this approach when he developed the Post-it® Flag Highlighter:

- a. He first asked students to identify their needs and wants.
- b. He asked students to bring him their five favorite office product items they used for studying.
- c. He patented his idea and sold it to 3M.
- d. He started with his idea and then investigated if there was a market for it.
- e. He petitioned 3M executives for the right to conduct independent research that ultimately resulted in the 15% rule.

Answer: d Page(s): 18 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

Rationale: The classic approach says to start with needs and wants of potential customers and then to develop the product. But sometimes new-product development runs in the opposite direction: Start with a new product idea and then see if there is a market for it. This is really what Windorski did for the Post-it® Flag Highlighter, using marketing research along the way.

1-228 VIDEO CASE 1: 3M

COMPREHENSION

Which of the following statements about 3M's market research prior to introducing the Post-it® Flag Highlighter is most accurate?

- a. David Windorski worked with clay and wood models to see how much additional weight students would be willing to carry in their backpacks.
- b. David Windorski asked students to dump the contents of their backpacks to make sure no clay prototype was being stolen.
- c. David Windorski used focus groups, observed students' studying behavior, and even gave out trial Post-it® Flag Highlighters to a sample of students to try for a month.

- d. David Windorski hired students to act as “brand evangelists” to handout promotional samples of Post-it® Flag Highlighters to other students at their respective universities and colleges during “move-in day.”
- e. David Windorski hired students as “mystery shoppers” to see what office supplies students bought at their college bookstores during the week before as well as the first week of classes.

Answer: c Page(s): 18 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

Rationale: 3M and David Windorski did a lot of marketing research on students during the new-product development process. They used all of the methods (and more) listed in alternative “c” in order to understand students’ reactions and consider suggestions for improvements.

1-229 VIDEO CASE 1: 3M

COMPREHENSION

Which of the following was LEAST challenging as a pre-launch issue for 3M as it introduced the Post-it® Flag Highlighter?

- a. manufacturing issues—where will the product be produced?
- b. place issues—how will 3M persuade office supply retailers and college bookstores to carry the items?
- c. promotion issues—how will 3M tell students the offering exists?
- d. price issues—what should 3M charge for this innovation and should there be differences between different retail outlets (college bookstores, mass merchandisers, office supply stores, etc.)?
- e. market segmentation issues—who is(are) the target market(s) for this offering?

Answer: e Page(s): 18-19 LO: 2 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

Rationale: David Windorski of 3M already determined beforehand who the primary target market for his Post-it® Flag Highlighter was—college students.

1-230 VIDEO CASE 1: 3M

COMPREHENSION

In the future, 3M will make use of _____ to attract new customers.

- a. product extensions
- b. social responsibility
- c. social entrepreneurship
- d. graduate students to design new products
- e. cause marketing by “going green”

Answer: a Page(s): 19 LO: 4 AACSB: Analytic QD: Medium

Rationale: To build on the initial success of the Post-it® Flag Highlighter, 3M will take great care to introduce new product extensions to attract new customers while still retaining its solid foundation of loyal existing customers.

CREATING CUSTOMER RELATIONSHIPS AND VALUE THROUGH MARKETING

SHORT ESSAY QUESTIONS

1-231 CHAPTER OPENER: 3M

COMPREHENSION

Explain the market research that David Windorski, 3M inventor, did to develop the Post-it® Flag Highlighter.

Answer:

During the new-product development process, Windorski and 3M did a lot of marketing research on students. Working with a team of four college students, Windorski and the team observed and questioned dozens of students about how they used their textbooks, took notes, wrote term papers, and reviewed for exams. Other research was quite traditional. For example, students were asked to dump the contents of their backpacks on the table to explain what they carried around and then to react to some early highlighter models. Also, several times six or seven students were interviewed together and observed by 3M researchers from behind a one-way mirror—the focus group technique. Other students were interviewed individually. Windorski then used wood blocks and modeling clay to mock up a number of nonworking models. These nonworking models showed Windorski how the product would feel. He then produced the 2-in-1 highlighter plus Post-it® Flag Highlighter working models that students could actually use to give him feedback. Several hundred were produced and given to students to use for a month. Their reactions and suggestions for improvements were captured on a written questionnaire.

1-232 STUDENTS AS MARKETING EXPERTS

APPLICATION

Why are you, as a student, already somewhat of a marketing expert before taking this course? Provide a specific example from your own personal experience and relate it to something you just “formally” learned about marketing.

Answer:

Students are, in a sense, marketing experts because they engage in many marketing activities every day. Experience in shopping for products gives students great insights into the world of marketing. As consumers, students have been involved in thousands of marketing decisions, but mostly on the buying and not the selling side. For example, right before class a student may have bought lunch in the school cafeteria—as a buyer in a marketing activity.

1-233 WHAT IS MARKETING?

KNOWLEDGE

What is the abridged American Marketing Association definition of marketing according to the textbook? How does this differ from your previous notion of marketing before beginning this course?

Answer:

The American Marketing Association represents marketing professionals. Combining its 2004 and 2007 definitions, “Marketing is the activity for creating, communicating, delivering, and exchanging offerings that benefit its customers, the organization, its stakeholders, and society at large.” This definition shows marketing to be a far broader activity than simply advertising or personal selling. It stresses the importance of delivering genuine benefits in the offerings of products, services, and ideas marketed to customers. Also, note that the organization doing the marketing, the stakeholders affected (such as customers, employees, suppliers, and shareholders), and society should all benefit.

1-234 WHAT IS MARKETING?

COMPREHENSION

What are the two key objectives of marketing? Define “exchange” and explain how it supports these objectives.

Answer:

To serve both buyers and sellers, marketing seeks (1) to discover the needs and wants of prospective customers and (2) to satisfy them. The key to achieving these two objectives is the idea of exchange, which is the trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each is better off after the trade. If an exchange takes place, then marketers will have been successful in achieving these two objectives, since each party must be better off after the trade.

1-235 EXCHANGE

APPLICATION

Some people may assume that for a marketer the only thing of value for which he or she would “exchange” would be monetary (check, credit/debit, currency, and/or coin transactions). But what else can be exchanged? Provide an example of a nonmonetary transaction that still fits the criteria of exchange.

Answer:

Exchange is the trade of things of value between buyer and seller so that each is better off after the trade. This could include exchange of votes for political leadership, donations of time in exchange for feelings of generosity, etc. It would also include barter, the practice of exchanging products and services for other products and services rather than for money in both domestic and global markets.

1-236 DIVERSE FACTORS IN MARKETING

COMPREHENSION

In addition to consumers, what other people, groups, and environmental forces interact to influence an organization’s marketing activities?

Answer:

Foremost is the organization itself, whose mission and objectives determine what business it is in and what goals it seeks. Within the organization, management is responsible for establishing these goals. The marketing department works closely with a network of other departments and employees to help provide the customer-satisfying products required for the organization to survive and prosper. The marketing department is responsible for facilitating relationships, partnerships, and alliances with the organization's customers, its shareholders (or often representatives of groups served by a nonprofit organization), its suppliers, and other organizations. Environmental forces such as social, economic, technological, competitive, and regulatory forces also shape an organization's marketing activities. Finally, an organization's marketing decisions are affected by and, in turn, often have an important impact on society as a whole. The organization must strike an acceptable balance among all these influences. See Figure 1-2 in the textbook.

1-237 REQUIREMENTS FOR MARKETING TO OCCUR

COMPREHENSION

What four factors are required for marketing to occur?

Answer:

For marketing to occur, four factors are required: (1) two or more parties (individuals or organizations) with unsatisfied needs; (2) a desire and ability on their parts to satisfy these needs; (3) a way for the parties to communicate; and (4) something to exchange.

1-238 REQUIREMENTS FOR MARKETING TO OCCUR

APPLICATION

In China, many people are removing their money from the state banks and lending it out themselves. The interest rate earned in a state bank account is about one-half the rate of inflation. On the other hand, loaning money to friends, relatives, and even unrelated entrepreneurs can often earn the investor a rate at least double the inflation rate. The gray market, an underground network of investors and private businesses, moves the cash from lenders to businesses. Did marketing occur here? Explain your answer.

Answer:

To answer this question, students will need to know the four factors that are required for marketing to occur. (1) There must be two or more parties with unsatisfied needs. The lenders want to receive a higher interest rate on their funds and the businesses need short-term loans. (2) There must be a desire and an ability to satisfy those needs. The lenders want to receive a higher interest rate on their funds and the businesses need short-term loans. The money is available since the lenders removed it from the state banks. (3) There must be a way for the parties to communicate. Word-of-mouth from the gray market, an underground network, allows communication between the lenders and businesses. (4) There must be something to exchange. Cash was exchanged in the form of loans, repaid with interest. Students should be able to see that marketing did indeed occur.

1-239 DISCOVERING NEEDSAPPLICATION

Add your own personal experience and creativity to what you have just learned about marketing. Formulate a plan to assess the needs of either (1) students who have too many textbooks to carry to and from class or (2) executives who are too busy to keep up with the latest information in their field.

Answer:

A quality answer will include multiple techniques. Even though this is not the “market research” chapter, there are textbook examples of observation, questioning, involvement of stakeholders in the research process, discussions, etc. used to discover needs. The emphasis should be placed on gathering as much information as possible prior to development of the product itself.

Page(s): 7-8LO: 2*AACSB: Analytic*QD: Hard*1-240 CONSUMER NEEDS AND WANTS*COMPREHENSION

Define needs and wants. Can marketing shape a person’s wants? Explain your answer.

Answer:

A need occurs when a person feels deprived of basic necessities like food, clothing, and shelter. A want is a need that is shaped by a person’s knowledge, culture, and personality. Effective marketing, in the form of creating an awareness of good products at convenient locations, can clearly shape a person’s wants. Certainly, marketing tries to influence what we buy. A principal activity of a firm’s marketing department is to scrutinize its consumers to understand what they need and want and the trends and factors that shape them. However, a key issue is the amount of freedom given to prospective customers to make their own buying decisions.

Page(s): 8LO: 2*AACSB: Analytic*QD: Medium*1-241 MARKET/TARGET MARKET*APPLICATION

Explain the difference between a market and a target market. Provide a specific example of each.

Answer:

Potential consumers make up a market, which is people with both the desire and the ability to buy a specific product. All markets ultimately are people. A target market is one or more specific groups of potential consumers toward which an organization directs its marketing program. An example of a market is the tablet device market. An example of a target market for tablet devices would be college students who want their textbooks in digital, not printed format, for the convenience (no more heavy books) and lower cost (due to the digital delivery of the content).

Page(s): 8-9LO: 2*AACSB: Analytic*QD: Hard*1-242 TARGET MARKET*APPLICATION

Describe two different target markets for two different products or services you, your friends, or your family have recently purchased or used.

Answer:

A target market is a specific group of potential consumers toward which an organization directs its marketing program. In response to this question, students might define the target market for a local baseball team as people who live in the area, somewhat skewed toward males, perhaps, and 25 to 84 years of age. Another interesting answer is to examine how one product, such as a Toyota 4-Runner, can have two different target markets. One target market might be the adventurous outdoor mountain biker that uses the vehicle to transport his or her equipment to the mountains to bike. The other target market might be a “soccer mom” with children and equipment to transport to the local soccer field for practice. This question offers a good opportunity for class discussion of the more interesting examples and observations of students.

APPLICATION

An inventor designs a scissors that has interchangeable blades that allow the user to switch from straight cuts to decorative cuts. Identify two possible target markets and justify your answer.

Answer:

A target market is a specific group of potential consumers toward whom an organization directs its marketing program. While anyone might benefit from using the product, a quality answer should link the benefits of the product (interchangeable straight and decorative blades) to the specific needs of a specific group. For example, scrapbook makers could use the straight blade when trimming pictures and use decorative blades when cutting backgrounds pages for their albums. The same scissors might be targeted for school teachers to create decorative flyers to post on bulletin boards regarding upcoming events for their students.

KNOWLEDGE

Marketing managers used a combination of four tools in order to develop a complete marketing program to reach consumers. Briefly define these four tools.

Answer:

To reach consumers, marketing managers use four tools, often called, “the 4 Ps.” These include: (1) product—a good, service, or idea to satisfy the consumers’ needs; (2) price—what is exchanged for the product; (3) promotion—a means of communication between the seller and buyer; and (4) place (or distribution)—a means of getting the product to the consumer.

Imagine you have the sole marketing rights to a new herbal shampoo that stops hair loss and actually causes new hair growth. You are planning to sell online a 15-ounce bottle for $24.99 plus $7.99 shipping and handling. Using the information provided, identify each element of your marketing mix.

Answer:

The shampoo is the product element. The Internet website is the place element. The ads on late night television and the publicity are the promotion element. The price element is the $24.99 price plus the $7.99 for shipping and handling.

Do college students have a choice in which classes they take to earn a degree? Use what you have learned about the controllable and uncontrollable aspects of marketing in terms of how they might relate to course selection decision-making. Incorporate marketing terms in your response.

Answer:

Most colleges and universities offer some courses that are "required"—the "core" courses in the major as well as social sciences—while others are “elective.” These are the “product” or “service” element of the educational offering. The “price” element would be the tuition paid, less any scholarships. The promotion element would consist of the communication between the educational institution and students, such as e-mails ads in high school career counseling offices, course catalogs, etc. The place element would consist of the on-campus location, off-campus location, and/or the online website that delivers courses that fulfill either the core and elective requirements for the majors students select. APPLICATION

The Apple iPhone is rated by Consumer Reports as being one of the best smartphones in the industry. Define customer value. In what ways do you think the Apple iPhone provides value for its customers?

Answer:

Customer value is the unique combination of benefits received by targeted buyers that includes quality, convenience, on-time delivery, and both before-sale and after-sale service at a specific price. Many successful firms have chosen to deliver outstanding customer value with one of three value strategies: best price, best product, or best service. Apple uses the best product and best service strategies for its iPhone, which Consumer Reports rates as one of the best smartphones on the market. Smartphones users may cite the iPhone’s display, ease of use of its multitouch user interface, voice quality, messaging, camera, video game capability, durability, battery life, etc., as key product-related benefits.

1-251 RELATIONSHIP MARKETING

APPLICATION

During October, kiosk or “pop-up” stores often appear in many malls for the holiday season. Typically, these kiosks sell gift boxes of cheese, jewelry, and other items people think are appropriate seasonal gifts. In January, these “pop-up” retailers vanish. Is it possible for such a retailer to use relationship marketing? Explain your answer.

Answer:

Generally, students will say “no” based on the definition of relationship marketing. The textbook defines relationship marketing as linking the organization to its individual customers, employees, suppliers, and other partners for their mutual long-term benefits. In an ideal setting, relationship marketing involves a personal, ongoing relationship between the organization and an individual customer. However, this is based on the idea that the kiosks are not there long enough to establish a long-term relationship. Very insightful students may see an opportunity for these retailers (who return year after year) to develop long-term multiyear relationships. Databases would allow direct mail notifications each fall that the prized gifts are again available. Also, kiosk marketers could send customers e-mails throughout the winter, spring, and summer about specials, new products, and other offers to stimulate year-round purchases.

Twitter is a website that offers a social networking service, enabling its users to send and read other users’ messages or conversations called tweets, which are text-based posts of up to 140 characters displayed on the user’s profile page. Connected to each “tweet” is a rich details pane that provides additional information, deeper context, and embedded media. Companies are just beginning to use Twitter as a tool in their relationship marketing programs. In what ways could Twitter be used to benefit both the customer and the organization?

Answer:

One aspect of Twitter is that it allows organizations to get customer feedback in “real time.” It provides the organization with information about “followers” in a larger and more open forum. It also provides access to ideas that might result in new or improved products that would benefit the customer. It could also allow companies to communicate with its customers in a frequent, informal and friendly way to support the relationship.

1-253 3M MARKETING PROGRAM

COMPREHENSION

Explain the marketing program that 3M used to reach the student target market for the Post-it® Flag Highlighter and the rationale used for each element of the marketing mix.

Answer:

Answers should address all four “Ps.” (1) The product strategy included offering the Post-it® Flag Highlighter to help college students with their studying. 3M listened carefully to the needs and wants of potential customer segments to use 3M technology to introduce a useful, innovative product. (2) The price strategy sought a retail price of about $3.99-$4.99 for a single the Post-it® Flag Highlighter or $5.99-$7.99 for a three-pack. The idea was to set prices that provide genuine value to the customer segment that was targeted. (3) The promotion strategy was to run limited promotion with a TV ad and some ads in college newspapers and then rely on student word-of-mouth messages to inform other students of the product. This would increase awareness of potential users in the student segment who had never heard of this new, innovative 3M product. (4) The place strategy was to distribute the Post-it® Flag Highlighter through college and university bookstores, office supply stores, and mass merchandisers. This made it easy for prospective buyers to buy at convenient retail outlets. See Figure 1-4 in the textbook.

COMPREHENSION

Explain the marketing program 3M used to reach the office worker segment with its Post-it® Flag Pen.

Answer:

A marketing program integrates the marketing mix elements to provide a good, service, or idea to prospective buyers. (1) 3M's product strategy to reach the office worker segment is to offer the Post-it® Flag Pen to help office workers in their day-to-day work activities. 3M listened carefully to the needs and wants of potential customer segments to use 3M technology to introduce a useful, innovative product. (2) 3M's price strategy is to seek a retail price of about $3.99-$4.99 for a single Post-it® Flag Pen; wholesale prices are less. This price provides genuine value to the office worker segment. (3) 3M's promotion strategy is to run limited promotion among distributors to get them to stock the product. (4) 3M's place strategy is to distribute Post-it® Flag Pens through office wholesalers and retailers as well as mass merchandisers. See Figure 1-4 in the textbook.

1-255 EVOLUTION OF MARKET ORIENTATION

COMPREHENSION

Many market-oriented, older manufacturing organizations have experienced four distinct stages in the life of their firms. Beginning with the 1860s, list and define each of the four eras of U.S. business history.

Answer:

(1) During the production era, which started on the 1860s until the 1920s, goods were scarce so buyers were willing to accept virtually any goods that were produced and made do with what was available. The central notion was that products would sell themselves, so the major concern of business firms was production, not marketing. (2) The next era was the sales era, which occurred from the 1920s to the 1960s. During that time, firms discovered that they could produce more goods than their regular buyers could consume. Competition grew. The usual solution was to hire more salespeople to find new buyers. (3) The marketing concept era began in the late 1950s when marketing concept became the motivating force among many American firms. The marketing concept is the idea that an organization should strive to satisfy the needs of consumers while also trying to achieve the organization's goals. (4) The latest era is the customer relationship era, which began in the late 1990s. Here, firms practice a market orientation by focusing efforts on continuously collecting information about customers' needs, sharing the information across departments, and using it to create customer value.

What are the primary differences between an ultimate consumer and an organizational buyer? Select one product and explain the differences in either its use or purchase, depending on whether it was purchased by an ultimate consumer or an organizational buyer.

Answer:

Students' examples will differ, but each example should be descriptive of the definition. Ultimate consumers are the people who use the products and services purchased for a household. For example, a flat screen high definition television could be purchased by any member of a family and used by all for personal enjoyment. Organizational buyers are those manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, and government agencies that buy products and services for their own use or for resale. A hospital might buy the same television model (most likely in larger quantities) for use in patients' rooms to add value by enhancing their hospital stays.

1-260 UTILITY

KNOWLEDGE

Explain what is meant by the concept of marketing utility. Identify and describe the four utilities created by marketing.

Answer:

Marketing creates utility, the benefits or customer value received by users of the product. This utility is the result of the marketing exchange process and the way society benefits from marketing. The four utilities include form, place, time, and possession. The production or alteration of goods or services constitutes form utility. Place utility means having a good or service available where needed, whereas time utility is the value to consumers of having a good or service available when needed. Possession utility is the value to consumers of making an item easy to purchase, such as with a convenient credit card, so consumers can use it.

1-261 UTILITIES

APPLICATION

At the BMW website, BMW.com, you can design your own BMW with the exact features you desire. If you choose to use this method to purchase a car, what type of utility(ies) has(have) been created?

Answer:

Form utility comes from the production or alteration of a product or service that provides value to consumers. Form utility is created when you can design and build your own personal BMW at the BMW's website, BMW.com. In addition, BMW provides possession utility, which is the value of making an item easy to purchase through the provision of credit cards or financial arrangements. Here BMW provides possession utility by allowing customers to buy a car online. Eventually, they will have to go to a local dealer to pick up their cars, an example of place utility. Finally, BMW provides time utility because building a BMW car online saves consumers from taking time to visit dealerships to see if their preferred car is on the lot. The BMW website also provides information to make the external information search process more efficient (see Chapter 5).
