2.3 Essay Questions

1) Distinguish between cooperation and collaboration.

Answer: Cooperation is a group of people working together, all doing essentially the same type of work, to accomplish a job. A group of four painters, each painting a different wall in the same room, are working cooperatively.

Collaboration occurs when a group of people work together to achieve a common goal via a process of feedback and iteration. Using feedback and iteration, one person will produce something, say the draft of a document, and a second person will review that draft and provide critical feedback. Given the feedback, the original author or someone else will then revise the first draft to produce a second. The work proceeds in a series of stages, or iterations.

3) What is the difference between structured and unstructured decisions? Give an example of each.

Answer: Structured decisions are those where there exists an understood and accepted method for making the decision. The process through which financial institutions avail credit is an example of structured decision making. Unstructured decisions are those where there is no agreed-on decision-making method. Examples can include facility location, product mix, and capital budgeting.

Chapter LO: 3

4) Explain why structured decisions seldom require collaboration.

Answer: A structured decision process is one where there is an understood and accepted method for making the decision. Since the decision process is already understood, there is no reason for collaboration to determine how to make the decision.

5) Are most strategic decisions unstructured? Give an example of an unstructured strategic decision.

Answer: Yes. Since they are made less frequently and generally have a long-term time horizon, most strategic decisions are relatively unstructured. Predicting the direction of the economy or long-term labor planning might be considered unstructured strategic decisions. Operational decisions may also be unstructured like the example of deciding the number of cab drivers needed the night before the homecoming game.

7) What is the difference between synchronous and asynchronous communications? Provide examples for each.

Answer: Synchronous communications are collaborations where all the team members meet at the same time. Examples include face-to-face meetings, videoconferencing, conference calls, and multiparty chats.

Asynchronous communications occur when team members do not meet at the same time. Emails, discussion forums, and team surveys are examples of asynchronous communication.

8) What are team surveys? What are their benefits?

Answer: Team surveys are a form of communication technology. With these, one team member creates a list of questions and other team members respond.

Surveys are an effective way to obtain team opinions. They are generally easy to complete, so most team members will participate. Also, it is easy to determine who has not yet responded.
